TOULON, Illinois -- SSG Jason Adams of Galva's Foxtrot Battery is getting a book deal out of his war experience.

Adams had written his father letters while overseas. What he didn't know was his father was forwarding the letters to everyone he knew. The Stark County News gave Adams his own column, and, eventually, the letters caught the attention of a publishing company based in Fishers, Indiana.

The book chronicles the triumphs and the hardships the unit faced. The proceeds will go toward Adam's college expenses. He plans to be a nurse.

E-mails to Adam's can be sent to his publisher Anna Graf Williams at anna@learnovation.com.
